

NEW HAVEN DEALS WORST IN HISTORY SAYS COMMISSION

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 13.—"One of the most glaring instances of maladministration revealed in all the history of American railroad negotiations," is the Interstate Commerce Commission's characterization of its findings in the investigation of the New Haven Railroad's financial affairs, reported today to the Senate.

In a report of 30,000 words, probably the most drastic in terms of any ever made by the commission, the New Haven directors were pronounced "criminally negligent." Everything pointing to violation of laws has been transmitted to district attorneys in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York and the Federal Department of Justice.

"A reasonable estimate of the loss to the New Haven by reason of waste and mismanagement," says the report, "will amount to between $60,000,000 and $90,000,000. The directors should be made individually liable to civil and criminal laws for the manner in which they discharged their trust."

All of the Commission's strictures were on the management of the New Haven system under former President Mellen. "In justice to the present management," the Commission says, "it is but fair to say that Chairman Howard Elliott, and Walker D. Hines, special counsel, have co-operated with the commission and have rendered it substantial assistance throughout the investigation."

The report cites these "significant incidents" in the loose, extravagant and improvident administration of the finances of the New Haven as shown in their investigation. The Boston and Maine despoilment; the iniquity of the Westchester acquisition; the double price paid for the Rhode Island trolleys; the recklessness in the purchase of the Connecticut and Massachusetts trolleys at prices exorbitantly in excess of their market value; the unwarranted expenditure of large amounts in "educating public opinion;" the disposition, without knowledge of the directors, of hundreds of thousands of dollars for influencing public sentiment; the habitual payment of unitemized vouchers without any clear specifications of details; the confusing inter-relation of the principal company and its subsidiaries and the consequent complication of accounts; the practice of financial ledgerism in issuing large blocks of New Haven stock for notes of the New England Navigation Company and manipulating these securities back and forth; fictitious sales of New Haven stock to friendly parties with the design of boosting the stock and unloading it on the public at the highest market price; the scattering of retainers to attorneys of five states who rendered no itemized bills for services and who conducted no litigation to which the railroad was a party; the unlawful diversion of corporate funds to political organizations and the extensive use of a paid lobby.

PLOTS AGAINST YOUNG SHAH OF PERSIA UNEARTHED AS PLANS FOR COMING CORONATION ARE COMPLETED

Teheran, Persia, July 13.—This city, the capital of Persia, is preparing for the coronation of the young Shah Ahmed Mirza, who acceded to the throne in 1909. He will be crowned on his eighteenth birthday, July 21. A magnificent durbar, rivaling the celebrations of India, will be held. Troops will guard the young ruler from attempted assassination, as it is known that the followers of the deposed Shah Mahomed may try to make a demonstration. Plots against the young Shah's life have already been unearthed and the plotters punished.

COX TO AVOID USE OF TROOPS

By Associated Press.

Columbus, July 13.—Governor Cox said today that he had no intention of sending troops to Belmont unless the disorder among the striking miners becomes more serious. No further word of rioting came from Sheriff Anderson, of that county, or other sources today. Rumor still persists that the Ohio coal producers will soon consent to sign the wage scale.

cover about $125,000,000 alleged to have been wasted by the management.

The suit, which it is said will be filed this week, will be directed against J. P. Morgan, William Rockefeller, Lewis C. Ledyard and others who were members of the New Haven directorate at the time that the transactions that have been the subject of investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission were made. In a letter to the directors, made public today, the attorneys refer to the testimony concerning New Haven investments which proved unprofitable, brought out by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

ULSTERITE HORDE IN CELEBRATION

By Associated Press.

Belfast, Ireland, July 13.—The insistent demand of the protestant portion of Ulster for exclusion from the operations of the Irish Home Rule Bill added interest to today's celebration of the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. The parade of the Unionist leader, rode at the head of about 5,000 Orangemen, accompanied by the usual fife and drum bands and including a sprinkling of brethren from America and the British colonies.

The procession wound its way through the city of Belfast to Drum-burg where a great open air meeting was addressed by Sir Edward Carson and other leaders. The Nationalist quarters of Belfast were carefully avoided and on no occasion during the procession did the rival factions come into contact. Sir Edward Carson was the hero of the day.

By Associated Press.

London, July 13.—The manager of the Mexican railways cabled today that Provisional president Huerta had ordered him to reconstruct the portion of the line near Vera Cruz which was destroyed by the Mexican Federals when the city of Vera Cruz was occupied by the Americans.

CONFIRM STORY

By Associated Press.

Vera Cruz, July 13.—Four hundred laborers acting under orders from Mexico City, started work today repairing the two mile gap in the Mexican railway connecting Vera Cruz with the capital. The rushing of the work is believed here to indicate a possibility that the first train to pass over the repaired road may be a special conveying Gen. Huerta and his family to the coast.

VIOLENT WIND STORM SWEEPS OVER THE CITY AND COUNTY

Darkness Prevails Shortly After Noon Hour, While Worst Storm of Season Rages In All Its Fury, Doing Thousands of Dollars Worth of Damage.

THE CHERRY HOTEL PARTLY UNROOFED AND SEVERAL ROOMS ARE DAMAGED

Boy Badly Shocked by Grounded Wire—Common Pleas Court Room Suffers Greatly When Huge Window Crashes In—Crops Suffer Heavily From Storm.

Scores of Trees Uprooted and Many Branches Hurlled Through Windows—Reports of Serious Results in Surrounding Towns Greatly Exaggerated—Details Still Coming In.

Trees were broken, stripped, twisted and uprooted, telegraph and telephone wires were snapped in twain in many places and in some instances empty boxes and barrels were carried many rods and lodged in peculiar places and positions by a terrific wind and rain storm which swept over Washington and Fayette county early Monday afternoon. From all parts of the county and city come reports of property damage that may aggregate thousands of dollars. Some of the damage in the city, it was possible to learn of before going to press, included a wind and water damage of more than $500 to the Cherry Hotel, the razing of the large grand stand at Athletic ball park and the destruction of a new silo on the Dunlap premises off Circle avenue.

It is thought that when reports are in from all over the county the result will prove the storm to have been one of the most damaging in the history of Fayette county.

Roof Ripped From Cherry.

The freakish work of the wind at the Cherry Hotel is almost beyond comprehension. A large strip of tin roofing about twenty-five feet in length and nearly fifteen in width was ripped off the extreme northwest wing of the building, rolled into a ball and carried diagonally over the entire expanse of roof covering the hotel proper and landed in a heap in the middle of the intersection of Main and Market streets, a distance in all of about 300 feet.

The weight of the tin was more than 150 pounds.

The downpour that accompanied the wind thoroughly soaked the furnishings of six bedrooms immediately under this strip of roofing rendering much of it worthless.

Mrs. Dennis Escapes Injury.

Mrs. J. F. Dennis, who was in her room on the second floor of the Cherry Hotel at the time of the storm, was startled by the crashing of the large pane in the west window of the room overlooking the rear court and almost simultaneously was nearly prostrated by blow of a huge jagged fragment of glass from the pane which struck her on the head. The coil of her hair was all that saved her from serious injury. The breaking of the glass admitted the rain and the furnishings of the room were badly damaged before protection could be secured.

Another Freak of Storm.

Another freak of the storm was the renting of the large flag that hung from the windows of memorial hall, besides this two windows of the hall were blown in by the wind.

Damage May Be Great.

Indications point to the possibility of heavy losses to property and crops in the rural districts and it is said the force of the storm in and about Jamestown was of cyclonic proportions and created a great and widespread damage.

Barn Blown Down.

An old barn on the McLean farm west of town, was wrecked by the terrific windstorm Monday. The damage due to the wrecked barn was not heavy.

HALTS ADVANCE ON MEXICO CITY

Carranza Will Make New Effort to Get Villa in Line.

LATTER SULKING IN HIS TENT

Shows No Disposition to Resume the Offensive, His Attitude Causing Carranza Men Much Uneasiness—Villa's Entire Army in the Vicinity of Chihuahua City—Probable Successor to Huerta.

El Paso, Tex., July 13.—Acting under orders said to have been issued by General Carranza, Constitutional generalists have halted their advance upon Mexico City, which was well under way by at least two of the big divisions of the rebel army.

At Guadalajara, General Alfar Obregon is holding his force in readiness to move upon Queretaro, which is expected to be the last point which will offer serious resistance to the rebel advance upon the federal district. With every preparation made to continue the organization, Obregon was ordered to await orders from Carranza, and the reason assigned is that his men need rest.

At San Luis Potosi, General Pablo Gonzales has the city surrounded and is reported eager to make an attack, but he has been ordered to wait for orders. From San Luis Potosi the way would be open, for Gonzales to move quickly toward the federal district.

In the Chihuahua country General Francisco Villa's army remains inactive, but it is by reason of orders issued by Villa and not because of any order issued by Carranza.

The Sudden Halt.

The sudden halt of the Carranza forces just when the time appeared propitious for a quick and successful assault upon Huerta's capital, is attributed by Villa men to a desire on the part of Carranza to make a new effort to get Villa to join in the general movement to the south. Villa's entire army is now in the vicinity of Chihuahua City and Villa himself is in Chihuahua City and preparing to come to Juarez. He shows no disposition to resume the offensive and his attitude is said to be causing Carranza much uneasiness. They fear that he is planning some new move which may cause more trouble in Constitutional circles.

It is not believed on the border that the probability of Huerta leaving the country and turning over the government to Francisco Carbajal will make any material changes in the Constitutional program. It is known that Carranza's plan is to continue the campaign to the south even if Huerta should resign, but it is regarded as possible that Carranza will give the Carbajal government an opportunity to make peace overtures, and pending the possibility of such a move on their part, is willing to suspend operations temporarily. The principal reason of the halt in army movements, however, in the opinion of Villa sympathizers, is to enable Villa to change his mind and join the southern advance should he wish to do so.

NEXT ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CONVENTION

Columbus, July 13.—Leaders of the Anti-Saloon League of America, meeting at Westerville, have decided to hold the biennial convention of the league on the Million Dollar pier, July 6 to 10, 1915. Four large auditoriums, seating 17,000 persons, and several smaller halls have been secured. A feature will be a temperance exhibit on the pier.

"NO VOTE, NO RENT"

London, July 13.—In spite of the fact that her license of release from Holloway jail had expired, Sylvia Pankhurst took part in a suffragist procession through the East End of London to Canningtown public hall. Miss Pankhurst advocated a "no vote, no rent" crusade, which would terrify the government.

Six women were ejected from St. Paul's cathedral for singing the chant of the militant suffragettes. Two other women were ejected from Westminster Abbey for interrupting the services.

While King George and Queen Mary were driving in Dundee, Scotland, a suffragette threw a rubber ball bearing the inscription, "Stop the forcible feeding of women prisoners," into the queen's lap just as she was arrested by the side of the carriage.

LURTON CALLED

Member of Supreme Court Passes

HAD BEEN ILL FOR MONTHS

Jurist Was a Democrat and Was Elevated to the Supreme Bench Four Years Ago by President Taft—Funeral Train to Be Made Up at Washington and Proceed to Tennessee. Associates to Attend.

Washington, July 13.—News of the death of Justice Horace H. Lurton at Atlantic City Sunday came as a great shock to official Washington. The justice had been in poor health for several months, but sat in the court in the closing days and read opinions. He died suddenly of heart disease, brought on by asthma. He was seventy-seven years of age.

Justice Lurton's body will be brought to Washington tonight. The funeral party will go to Louisville, Ky., and then to Nashville, Tenn. The interment will take place at Clarksville, Tenn., the home of Justice Lurton, where he began the practice of law.

All of Justice Lurton's associates in the supreme court have been notified. Chief Justice White will join the funeral train at White Sulphur Springs and proceed to Tennessee.

Justice Lurton has seen but little more than four years' service on the supreme court bench. Although a Democrat, he was appointed by President Taft, who had been associated with him in the circuit court of appeals for the Sixth circuit and had a high opinion of his judicial ability and integrity.

Lurton's Successor.

President Taft departed from a rule he laid down governing the appointment of judges when he named Justice Lurton, who was sixty-six years of age at the time of his appointment. In doing so President Taft felt that he was righting a wrong that had been done his friend Justice Lurton when President Roosevelt had practically agreed to appoint Mr. Lurton to the supreme bench and then changed his mind, yielding to a campaign which had been started against the jurist upon the ground that he had been unfriendly to labor in his decisions and had accepted favors from railroad companies.

The death of Justice Lurton means that President Wilson will be called on to make his first appointment to the supreme bench. Before the death of Justice Lurton the supreme court was made up of six Republicans and three Democrats. By the death of Justice Lurton the Democratic representation is reduced to two—Chief Justice White and Associate Justice Lamar. It is generally assumed that a Democratic president will feel impelled under such circumstances to name a Democrat to succeed Lurton.

IRISH ASK FOR HELP

Say England Is Trying to Intensify Religious Strife.

New York, July 13.—Arrangements for the collection of a "sacred and inviolable fund" to purchase arms for the Irish Nationalists were made at a meeting in this city of the executive committee of the Irish National volunteer fund committee. Delegates were present from several eastern and middle states and they came fortified with assurance of support from the south and west. After a prolonged session an appeal to the Irish people in the United States for aid was prepared.

The appeal reads: "England in Parnell's day treated Ireland as a single political unit. North and south, orange and green were acknowledged as inseparable parts of one country and one people. But today an English government which professes friendship for Ireland and exists only through Irish support, proposes to cut off Ulster or portions of it from the rest of Ireland and thus prolong and intensify the religious strife which has cursed Ireland for three centuries. The only means of preventing this infamy is the organization of such American support of the National Volunteers as will compel the statesmen of England to recognize that Ireland is one and indivisible."

REPORT CLASH WITH UNIONISTS

Belfast, July 13.—There was a fight between Nationalists and Unionists at Kilren, County Derry. Several revolvers were fired and there was considerable stone throwing, but the police prevented any serious disturbance. All the local Catholic priests in their sermons referred to the Orangemen's holiday. They urged the members of their congregations to keep order and strongly counseled them to refrain from provocative action which might bring about disturbances.

Happiness Only In Work.

Men and women of experience in the world—most of them—are firmly convinced that the greatest happiness is generally found with those who have but a small amount of the material things of life.

Happiness must come from within and cannot be found elsewhere, no matter how thorough and how laborious the search.

The families of moderate means—those who depend on their daily toil for their daily bread—where the standard of morality is high, are after all more content, more appreciative of the simple and really the only great blessings of life, and consequently happier than any others.

Of course, happiness and contentment cannot abide where abject poverty and actual want rule the household. But the happy zone is that one which lies safe beyond the grasp of poverty, where blessed with a vigorous constitution the father is able, by his daily work—literally by the sweat of his brow—to keep the wolf from the door, where each member of the family is able and willing and expects nothing else than to lend a helping hand in the labor of wresting a living from the world.

The possession of a surplus of this world's goods does away with the necessity for toil. Idleness then comes to dull the spirit and to disturb the mind. Restlessness and the desire to possess something else which only employment of mind and body in honest toil can satisfy, takes full possession and happiness flies away.

Man must earn his happiness, his peace of mind and all the real joys of life, as well as his bread, by the sweat of his brow.

There are more boys and young men made wretched by having every want supplied without effort on their part than in any other way.

There is nothing better for the mind and the body of the restless growing boy and ambitious young man than work. There is nothing in the world that will keep his mind and body in healthy condition like work.

The most thoroughly unhappy people in this world today are those people who have nothing to do save amuse themselves.

Whenever a human being, young or old, doesn't know what to do with himself a life of discontent is assured unless there is a right about face in the method of living.

Whenever a man starts out with nothing to do save to find happiness, his search will be just about as fruitless as the man who seeks the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

There are a host of people—good at heart—in this world today who would be happier by far if they would only grasp opportunity, if they would but turn the key which unlocks to them the priceless treasury of happiness, if they would but realize that their wealth of worldly goods is but the chaff which conceals the golden grains of content.

Delicatessen Store Habit to Blame For Increase In Unhappy Marriages

By Rev. Dr. S. PARKES CADMAN In Address to West Side Y. M. C. A., New York City

THE increase in unhappy marriages and consequent increase of divorces may be directly charged to the delicatessen store habit. New York women are too prone to dip their fingers into every pickle jar of the corner delicatessen store instead of cooking a whole meal for their husbands. There is nothing that sends man into the day better prepared for victory than a good breakfast and a clean shave.

GOOD BREAKFASTS, HOMELIKE BREAKFASTS, THE KIND OF BREAKFASTS THAT DO A MAN GOOD, DO NOT COME FROM THE DELICATESSEN SHOP. THE DELICATESSEN SHOP IS CATERING TO A GENERAL TRADE AND CANNOT MAKE THINGS AS EACH INDIVIDUAL WOULD LIKE THEM. A QUARTER'S WORTH OF SLICED HAM FROM A DELICATESSEN SHOP WILL NOT GIVE A MAN THE SAME SATISFACTION THAT A HOME COOKED SLICE OF HAM WILL.

Married life is a partnership, and a woman should be enough interested in her husband's work to help keep him physically fit. WOMAN HAS HER PART TO DO IN THE STRUGGLE FOR SUCCESS. It's not much encouragement for a man to cook his own breakfast while his wife stays abed for another nap.

Poetry For Today

TO THE MEXICAN NIGHTINGALE.
Clarín, from what glens of air
Chime your cameo-colored bells?
When they ring, I know them rare,
Fluted like the lips of shells
For the tone to ripple down,
Honey-pale or amber-brown.

When the tawny evening spills
Drops of topaz down the pine,
Light denied the dusking hills,
Do you gather and confine
In some clear aerial jar,
On the branch where flits the star?

Do you pour the liquid light
Early from your lyric urn?
Nay, it was at midnight night
That I heard among the fern
Golden drops that well in showers,
Shaken down as out of flowers!

Did the Foam-born brim those bells
With the wistful melodies
Of enchanted vocal shells?
Does the satin sigh of trees
Bring a memory of foam?
Clarín, do you sing of home?

Taming A Shrew

With an Interruption That Brought a Climax.

By Martha McCulloch-Williams.

Pretty Kitty Clyde was not really a shrew. She had merely been born imperious and had grown up into absolute monarch of an adoring family.

Until she was rising eleven Douglas Norton had been also of her subjects. Fate whisked him away then to inherit an uncle's fortune and go racing about the world, thereby giving Kitty her first realizing sense that things could happen otherwise than according to her will.

The process was unpleasant. By a curious mental alchemy Kitty unconsciously stored the unpleasantness as a grudge against the absent Douglas.

So when he came home ten years later and fell openly and instantly a victim to her charms she was in two minds as to what to do with him, and she yielded in favor of the mind that advised her to do something unpleasant.

He was a dear fellow, suiting her exactly in some of her moods. In others—but in those others nobody suited her, least of all herself. Those other moods would probably have made her send Douglas about his business if he had not had the lucky misfortune to have the Ackroys for friends.

The Ackroys, whom Kitty loathed, gave up days and nights to warning Douglas against her. The warnings were not wholly disinterested. Though the two Miss Ackroys were quite old enough to be his mother, there was Lena Shotwell, their niece, over in Kiltredge town, for whose establishment they were most anxious.

Given the facts, the temperaments and the situation, the resulting engagement followed logically. Kitty excused herself to her conscience for it with the special pleading that it would chafe the Ackroys and that if she finally broke the engagement the making of it would save Douglas from worse.

Of course she would not think of marrying him for years. Meantime she would revel in the Ackroyd discomfiture. Then her people were so happy over the prospect. That really meant a lot to her.

Dimly at the bottom of a very warm heart she felt that, on the whole, she had not made them as happy as she might have done.

So altogether she was not ill content with the estate in life wherein she now found herself until Douglas obstinately insisted upon her naming the day.

"Go away! The role of impatient lover does not fit you in the least," she said to him with the most fetching pout. "You know you'd be dreadfully upset if I agreed to anything so insane. We can be married when we are too old to care for tearing about. When you are thirty-five I shall be thirty-two. That will be quite time enough to do the Darby and Joan act. Until then—well, we shall stay as we are."

"We will not!" Douglas asserted, seizing both her hands. "Understand, I'm going to be a married man before the year is out!"

"I dare say you can get Lena Shotwell—or somebody like her—all on a sudden this way," Kitty interrupted, trying to pull away her hands.

Douglas held them tight. "I'm going to marry you—nobody else," he said. "Make up your mind to the fact, lady-kin, and give up gracefully while there is time."

"Of all impertinence!" Kitty flashed out at him. "Let go my hands so I can take off your rubbishy ring! I won't marry you—now, never nor next day. I won't even speak to you ever again if you hold me a second longer."

"What a peaceful home we shall have!" Douglas murmured, letting go her hands, but catching her in his arms. He pressed her close and went on, with his lips against her pink ear: "Little darling, I ought to want you to be sensible, but the fact is—I don't. It is ever so much more thrilling to take you thus in spite of yourself. You have never even let me kiss your hand. No matter when we married, this would have to come some time. You know you need mastering, but I'm too generous to ask you to admit it. Come along. I want you to hear me tell daddy all about it. Mother Clyde has already agreed with me that the wedding had better be on your birthday."

Then Kitty forgot herself, her years, her grown-up estate. She screamed. He did not pay any attention. She became so angry that she tried to claw his cheek, but none of her efforts or shrieks availed.

He lifted her as if she were only five years old and carried her into the sitting room, where her father rose in affright. Mrs. Clyde, pallid, but more composed, stood beside him, her hand laid detainingly upon his shoulder.

"It is hard to bear, mighty hard," she whispered. "We—ought to bear it for the child. Spoiling her so is our work. But for heaven's sake keep still! Her whole future depends on it. Douglas is the man of men for her, and she will throw him over if she has the least chance."

"Daddy! Oh, dear daddy!" Kitty panted, trying to reach out appealing arms. Douglas pinioned them fast and went close to Major Clyde, saying, with a laugh that was not quite easy: "Major, this girl you gave me is behaving so badly! I think you might throw in one of old Flossy's pups to even up the trade."

At that Kitty screamed afresh. The major's breath came hard, his face grew apoplectic, but his wife's hand, closing and unclosing convulsively, warned him not to interfere.

He tried to assume a judicial air and say, "The case admits of argument," but at the second word the door opened to admit Miss Alicia Ackroyd, who usurped and abused privileges of intimate neighborliness.

The Ackroyd house stood just across the road. The two sisters had been on watch in the front windows ever since they saw Douglas ride through the Clyde gate.

They had heard the screams and had made their incursion. "Somebody must be killing somebody over there. I'm going to find out who," Miss Alicia said to Miss Patricia, not even stopping to snatch at a bonnet as she sped through the front door and down the walk.

After one startled "Oh!" she stood still, staring at Douglas, who had loosed his hold of Kitty, but kept her hand. Kitty had been in a white rage.

Now she flushed brilliantly and looked at the intruder with her most infantile smile. "Dear Miss Alicia, did I really frighten the neighbors?" she asked. "I'm so glad. Do say I did. We have just had an impromptu rehearsal. Douglas, wretch that he is, insists that I can't act, that he is not depriving the stage of a great ornament in marrying me, and I was bound to prove him in the wrong."

"Oh!" Miss Alicia said again, this time with a mighty different infection, yet one that still lacked something of conviction. Miss Patricia, fully bonneted, here panted in.

When the stir of settling her ended Miss Alicia returned to the charge. "You ought to have called in a bigger audience, dear Kitty," she said in the suave voice that always meant mischief. "But do tell me what the play was. I don't seem to recall."

"Of course you don't. I belong to the new school," Kitty said brightly. "The new school exists, you know, to prove that until it came nobody ever played Shakespeare quite right. Maybe it's because of my name, but I've always felt that I could give a new rendering of Katharine, you know, in 'The Taming of the Shrew.'"

"She did do it and was most convincing," Douglas interrupted gratefully. He had been going hot and cold, wondering if there were any escape from the valley of humiliation open before them. He knew that only by a miracle could the Ackroyd tongues be stopped.

"So convincing!" he went on. "I see I must marry her right away. Miss Alicia, Miss Patricia, will you come to the wedding? It's to be just three weeks from now."

"You are a wretch, an ingrate!" Kitty said to him half an hour later when the Ackroys had reluctantly taken themselves away. "I saved you and in doing it trapped myself beyond escape. What punishment do you not deserve, sir?"

"Nothing short of imprisonment for life," Douglas said. "Kitty, darling, you showed yourself a genius and a heroine. In reward you shall go on having your own way."

"I don't want it—except sometimes," Kitty answered, racing away to kiss the major and Mrs. Major and at last to pet old Flossy's precious puppies.

National Forest Timber.

In 1905 the timber sold from the national forests aggregated 96,000,000 board feet, which brought the government no more than $85,000. In 1913 more than 2,000,000,000 feet brought in contracts amounting to $4,500,000. Not all this money was received in any one year, because national forest timber is sold on contracts which range from one to twenty-five years, and it is paid for as cut.

Tax on Hats.

Not only have hats at various times been subject to taxation, but have even been made the subject of special laws. Thus in Henry VII's reign none was allowed to sell hats at a larger price than 20 pence or caps for more than 2s. 8d.

Some compensation, however, for this interference with free trade could be found in the fact that in 1571 on Sundays and holidays every one above seven years of age was required to wear a cap of wool of English make under penalty of 3 farthings fine every day's neglect.—London Chronicle.

The Sun and the Weather.

Neither astronomers nor meteorologists are likely to take seriously the prediction of a French scientist that the recent renewal of sun spot activity will result in a long period of dry weather covering seventeen years. "The direct consequence of our dependence on the sun," he says, "is that seventeen years of dryness are followed by as many wet years." Many attempts have been made to discover any association between sun spot cycles and weather cycles, but as yet without success. There are three fairly well defined sun spot cycles, embracing four, eleven and thirty-three years, but no similar weather periods are known. During the last seventy years the Greenwich records of sun spots and rainfall show no relation, there being no correspondence between the two phenomena.—Westminster Gazette.

DEFENDS TREATY WITH COLOMBIA

Secretary of State Bryan Issues
Short Statement.

REPLIES TO CRITICS' ATTACKS

Declares Colombia Sustained Great Financial Loss, Considerably More Than the $25,000,000 Which Uncle Sam Would Pay Under Proposed Pact, Through the Loss of Panama. Would Restore Cordial Relations.

Washington, July 13.—Secretary Bryan issued a statement defending the proposed treaty to settle differences between the United States and Colombia over the separation of Panama. The treaty has met vigorous opposition in the senate and former President Roosevelt has attacked it as a vehicle for the payment of "black mail."

Mr. Bryan declared that it was necessary to discuss only the fact that an estrangement exists, and not the events which gave rise to the differences, and that, regardless of whether Colombia has a just grievance against her more powerful neighbor, no one would deny that the former country sustained great financial loss, considerably more than the $25,000,000 which the United States would pay under the treaty, through the separation of Panama.

As to the expression of regret on the part of the American government, to which opponents of the pending convention offer their bitterest objection, the secretary said this was almost identical with a similar expression in the Du Bois memorandum, on the basis of which the Taft administration unsuccessfully sought to placate Colombia.

Mr. Bryan concludes: "If cordial relations are to be restored with Colombia they must be restored on a basis that is satisfactory to Colombia. Friendships can not rest upon force; neither can they rest upon acquiescence in the power of might. Even if Colombia, under protest and against the judgment of her people, accepted a less sum than that which we offer, it would not restore the relations that ought to exist. We must satisfy their sense of justice, although a less sum might satisfy our sense of justice."

"The ratification of the Colombian treaty will restore the friendly relations which for a century preceding 1903 existed between Colombia and the United States. It will also enable Colombia and Panama to settle their differences and deal with each other upon a neighborly basis. More than that, it will give prestige to the United States throughout Spanish America. This nation can afford to be just; even more, it can afford to be generous in the settling of disputes, especially when by its generosity it can increase the friendliness of the many millions of Central and South America, with whom our relations become daily more intimate."

PREJUDICE IS ALLEGED

Washington, July 13.—In an official statement attacking the motives and methods back of the Carnegie peace foundation's investigations of the atrocities of the Balkan wars, Alexander Vouras, charge d'affaires here for Greece, asserts that the recent publication of the commission's full report and findings has intensified instead of allaying the Greek conviction that the investigators were prejudiced against Greeks and acted, in reality, as special pleaders for Bulgaria. In the statement the Carnegie commission is accused of distorting a telegram of King Constantine with "evident maliciousness" and of being "under the influence of the Bulgarian propaganda," and suggesting that the mission may "have allowed itself to be imposed upon by special interests."

DISPUTE ENDED

Columbus, July 13.—Within a few hours after the Ohio miners in convention had ratified in every particular the agreement—47 cents and 67.6 cents—of their scale committee with the operators in the Hocking, Pomeroy, Jackson and Crooksville districts, operators of the 22 mines in the Cambridge district agreed to the scale and will open their mines to the 6,000 miners who were awaiting such an agreement that they may return to work. The mines involved in this addition to the settlement are located in Guernsey and Noble counties.

The Cambridge action forecasts a settlement by other districts which have held out, it is said. This would mean an end to all mining troubles in Ohio. It was Governor Cox's appeal to Cambridge operators which brought in line the first of the outside districts. The first 1914-15 contract between miners and operators under the run of mine law is now in full effect.

RESULT OF PLOT

Shanghai, July 13.—Thirty-five midshipmen were killed by the mysterious explosion of a bomb over the magazine of the Chinese gunboat Ton Chi. It is suspected that there was a conspiracy aboard the ship which resulted in the perpetration of the outrage. The magazines of the warship were flooded to prevent further explosions. The Ton Chi is a vessel of 1,000 tons displacement.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Fly Menace.
It is said that the fly serves no good purpose. It is a mistake. He performs two very good services. He teaches the teachable to clean up and keep clean, and he kills off the others—that is, he assiduously works to cause a survival of the fittest.
Let us give the —that is, the fly—his due, says Life and Health. While we give him credit for this much good, let us be among the teachable.
Let us see that nothing around our premises breeds flies. Let us shun the presence of flies in the house as we would shun poison. Let us screen effectually our doors and windows, so as to avoid stray flies and let us kill every fly that gets inside the sacred inclosure. Especially if there is a baby in the family the fly is dangerous. Funerals are expensive, and then we would miss baby.

Style in Prison.
Women inmates of the workhouse and other correctional places in New York will no longer have to wear dresses made of bed ticking. Commissioner Katherine B. Davis does not promise to provide gowns from Paris, but there's going to be more style, and, with more style, she expects to make the women prisoners take more interest in themselves and in life generally.

TROOPS MAY TAKE A HAND

Columbus, July 13.—Without making a specific demand for militia protection, Sheriff Anderson of Belmont county wired Adjutant General Wood troops would be required to put down the trouble in the various mines in and around Bellaire. According to Sheriff Anderson the situation was growing worse and out of his control. Reports from Belmont county indicate that turbulent conditions exist there. Sheriff Anderson wired that while no direct destruction of property yet had taken place, that the pumps and fans in more than twenty mines had been stopped. The worst feature, he reported, was that the turbulent element threatens to tie up the mines that are connected with some large industries near Bellaire. The sheriff adds that he is at the end of his resources. General Wood communicated the purport of Anderson's message to George M. Burba, secretary to the governor, Governor Cox being out of the city.

MAID THE BIG STAR

Bailey Murder Case to Be Presented to Grand Jury.

Freeport, N. Y., July 13.—Celia Cole, the colored maid of Mrs. Edwin Carman, now locked up in Mineola jail charged with having murdered Mrs. Louise Bailey, will be one of the state's star witnesses in securing an indictment of Mrs. Carman from the grand jury.

District Attorney Lewis J. Smith admitted that he believed that Celia would amplify the story she told of what she saw and heard on the evening of June 30, when Mrs. Bailey was killed in Dr. Carman's office by a hand shoved through the window. The district attorney said that she will be one of his most important witnesses, but he refused to say why.

"The public and those who are working in Mrs. Carman's behalf can be sure of this," he said. "No attempt will be made to change the girl's story by unfair means, and no matter to what extent she changes her story I will not take her before the grand jury unless I am convinced that she is telling the truth."

POWER BOAT IS BLOWN UP

Cedar Point, O., July 13.—Vendetta, a big gasoline power boat owned by George F. Rosenberg and eight others escaped by jumping when they saw the flames approaching the tank. They were picked up by fishermen. Rosenberg was badly burned.

GREEN TO SPEAK

New York, July 13.—Amos Pinchot will preside over a mass meeting which will be held in Webster hall next Friday night to discuss the Colorado mine situation and government ownership of mines. Among the speakers will be Senator Martine of New Jersey and William Green, a state senator from Ohio and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been invited to attend the meeting.

FLYING BOAT IS DAMAGED

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 13.—The Rodman Wanamaker flying boat America was nearly wrecked in a collision with a log on Lake Keuka. Glenn H. Curtis, who was piloting the America, veered the craft so that the end of the log struck the hull at an angle. Her port side fin was torn off and smashed, but the hull was not damaged. The America made a short flight with a light load just before the accident, but the fins did not prove efficient enough to warrant putting the transatlantic load of 2,000 pounds on the America. They were removed and the boat was tried without fins, submerged planes or pontoons to observe the action of the water on the hull.

COTTERILL TOO MUCH FOR THE LILY BREWS

Dayton Aggregation Draws Defeat at Hands of Athletics Who Were In Exceptionally Good Form.
Four hundred and fifty fans were agreeably surprised Sunday afternoon when the much touted and record holding Lily Brews, of Dayton, dragged their standards in the dust of the Athletic park diamond before the irresistible onslaught of the Athletics. The game finished with the locals holding the long end of a 7 to 4 score and a well nigh perfect fielding and batting record.
The game was close until the third inning when Washington scored the first three runs of the game and the visitors went up in the air. Errors on the visiting side were plentiful after that time.
Features of the game were the twirling of Cotterill and the fielding and batting of Corwin. Cotterill is

GUNBOAT SMITH CONFIDENT OF VICTORY OVER CARPENTIER IN BIG BOUT

Gunboat Smith, the big American "white hope," is confident that he can beat Georges Carpentier, the French champion, when they meet in Paris on July 16. Smith has challenged Johnson to a fight in August, and if he wins decisively over the foreigner should be given a chance at the black.

GUNBOAT SMITH

EIGHT IN SPILL

Columbus, July 13.—Eight people were injured when an auto left the road and went into a ditch near Lewis Center, south of Delaware. The car was owned and driven by W. E. Fenstermaker, superintendent of a tile factory at Martel, O. The other occupants of the car were also residents of the same village.

THE MONORAIL OFFERED OHIO

Cincinnati, July 13.—W. H. Tiger man, inventor of Budapest, Hungary, is here trying to get a franchise for an electric overhead monorail line between this city and Dayton which he says will carry passengers 135 miles an hour.

MOTH PLAGUE

Canton, O., July 13.—Gypsy and brown tailed moths, the plague of Massachusetts for the last twenty years, have appeared in this locality and are feeding upon what foliage has been left by the seventeen year locust.

Icebergs and Temperature.

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to the effect of an iceberg on the temperature of the water in its immediate vicinity. The recent observations made by those on board the vessels of the United States ice patrol of the north Atlantic ocean show that the temperature of the water in the ocean at points far removed from the presence of icebergs is as low as that in the immediate presence of the berg.

Another Discovery.

The United States in shortening a few years ago the official name to "America" did so not as much for the sake of economizing time and space as for asserting pride of place in the western hemisphere.—Westminster Gazette.

MUSEUM FOR THE FUTURE.

Its Contents to Be Still Perfect a Thousand Years Hence.

A thousand year museum, designed to preserve exhibits so nearly perfect that they will not have changed in appearance when shown to Americans in 2914, is a recent addition to the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Dust, light, insects and moisture are the constant enemies of museum exhibits, so special storage vaults have been built, which will keep all four under perfect control and in all probability preserve exhibits for 1,000 years. The buildings are not expected to last for anything like that length of time, but the system will do its work of preservation perfectly well until the time for new vaults comes along. Dust and light can be kept under control by constant attention, so the real problems of ideal preservation are moisture and insects. The vaults have been built of concrete, with perfectly fitting air tight metal doors, so that neither moisture nor insects can get in.

In the event, however, of insects getting in—when the vaults are visited, for instance—provision is made to kill them off by filling the vaults with some deadly gas for a few hours occasionally.

Exhibits that are not very exciting now, but which will be genuine curiosities hundreds of years from now, are being stored—such as Indian baskets, headdresses and weapons. Some of the buckskin articles may not last a thousand years, because the Indian tanners did not do sufficiently perfect work, but it is predicted that most of the relics will last that long in good shape.—Saturday Evening Post.

FRIGHT AND SWIMMING.

Cramp Is Not Dangerous if Bathers Only Keep Their Heads.

The widest publicity should be given to Dr. Weizmiller's advice to the West Side Y. M. C. A. that it is fright, not cramp, which drowns many swimmers each summer. Cramp alone is innocent. This is Dr. Weizmiller's sound and useful rule:

"When seized with cramp, swim without using the crampy limb and, while swimming, alternately draw up and stretch out the limb as far as possible, thus helping nature to overcome the condition. If the cramp becomes worse turn over and float and exercise the cramped leg or arm as much as possible until the pain passes."

Scarcely a long distance swimming race is held that some competitors are not attacked by cramp. These experienced swimmers do not even stop, but go on at lessened speed while "kicking out" the local trouble. Yet every year swimmers quite capable of this easy trick become confused by the pain of a cramp, swallow a little water, remember what they have heard—that "cramps and sudden death are synonymous"—and go down, literally frightened to death.

If Dr. Weizmiller's directions could become part of the mental habit and instinct of every swimmer they would enable many a promising young man seized with cramp to keep cool, and that is commonly all that is necessary to save his life.—New York World.

A Gloomy Bedroom.

A sight which attracted a great deal of curious attention in London recently was a furniture show window in Oxford street, which had been set out by a futurist decorator as a sample of the bedroom of the future. The sheets and pillows on the bed were coal black, and the wall paper was of black and white stripes. There were orange and green cushions on a purple sofa and a vivid green china bird to put the finishing touch to the gloom of the surroundings.

Making and Earning Money.

"What is the difference between making money and earning money?" asked the youth.

"Sometimes the difference is a trip to the penitentiary for counterfeiting," answered the home grown philosopher.

Man's Inhumanity.

"And what do you think I'd look best in, George?" inquired the chattering wife at the recess of a three hour talk on clothes.

"In a coma, darling," replied George, he having secured his hat.—New York Press.

Too Vigorous.

"Why are you prejudiced against golf? You never saw a game."

"No; but I once heard part of one"—Judge.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Cancer of the Tongue.

That the commonest cause of cancer of the tongue, at any rate in persons under thirty years of age, is the irritation from sharp edged or carious teeth is proved by statistics collected by Drs. Gorse and Duplich and quoted in the New York Medical Record. Thirty per cent of the cases they studied were traceable to this cause. Cancer of the tongue in young persons almost always appears as an ulcer on the border of the tongue just where it rubs against the teeth. Sometimes it is at the tip. The cases in which it appears at the back of or underneath the tongue are rare. More than 90 per cent of these cases prove fatal within a few months. Moral.—At the first sign of decay or roughness of a tooth go to a dentist at once.

Regret.

Regret is a dangerous thing. You let a little one no bigger than a mustard seed into your heart, and before you know it you've hatched out a whole brood. Everything is woven into a pattern of the whole, and the Lord knew the figure he had in mind.—Ellen Glasgow.

LINING UP FOR PLACE

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 13.—No funeral services for the late Justice Lurton of the Supreme Court will be held here because of a change in the route of the funeral party from Atlantic City to Clarksville, Tenn., where burial will be made. Chief Justice White, of the White Plains Supreme Court of West Virginia, has arranged to go to Clarksville with Justice Lamar, now here, but other members of the Court are scattered for their summer vacations and may not be able to attend.

Members of Congress, from Tennessee, were preparing steps to urge the selection of Attorney General McReynolds to succeed Justice Lurton. Solicitor General John W. Davis of West Virginia also is being mentioned. The fourth circuit, to which West Virginia is assigned, has not been represented on the Supreme Court bench since Justice Taney's day, more than a half century ago.

CAN MAKE OR BREAK

By Associated Press.

Newport, R. I., July 13.—How the nation's foreign policy often hangs upon the action and discretion of a naval officer commanding a warship in a far-away port, was discussed by Secretary Daniels here today at the opening of the Naval War College session. He pictured the duties of the naval officer in the role of diplomat, recalled incidents in which commanders of American warships in foreign ports had opened new chapters in American history, and urged officers at the College and Marine officers to train themselves in international law and the languages in preparation for such emergencies.

"The Navy, in the technical diplomatic sense," said the Secretary, "must leave to the Department of State the settlement of international policies, and properly so. But, in the practical operations of policies affecting other nations, the action of the youngest naval officer commanding the smallest vessel in a foreign port might determine the action of our government, independent of the policies which the trained diplomats might have planned. In many quiet ports, the first American seen is an officer of the Navy. In surveying, in exploration, in protection of Americans, he is often called to places where no consul or other government official has gone."

REOPENED TO THE PUBLIC

The handsome M. E. church of New Holland, completed within the last few years, was re-opened Sunday after six weeks devoted to decorating and furnishing.

The decorating is in excellent taste and the church is as beautiful and inviting inside as it is in outward appearance.

Special services with very large attendance were held both morning and evening. Rev. Cherrington, D. D., District Superintendent, delivered the morning sermon and Rev. F. E. Ross, of Grace M. E. church the evening address.

IMMENSE CROWD ATTEND SERVICES

Over 500 people attended the second of the open air Sunday evening church services on the Court House lawn.

Rev. Hostetter delivered a helpful practical message and the stirring music of the large choir was a feature adding enthusiasm.

THE SEA OF LOT.

Its Ridge of Sodom and Its Fetid but Clear Blue Waters.

It is in the southeastern part of Palestine where the famous Dead sea lies. In the Old Testament it was known as the Sea of the Plain or Salt sea, but it is known today by the Arabs as the Sea of Lot. Its surface, which is lower than any other body of water, is 1,292 feet below the level of the Mediterranean.

The Dead sea is fed by the river Jordan from the north, but has no outlet, depending entirely upon evaporation. A portion of the sea is surrounded by cliffs which are destitute of vegetation. On the south shore is the ridge of rock salt, seven miles long and 300 feet high, known as the ridge of Sodom. Lava beds, sulphur and volcanic slag prove the existence of volcanic agencies at some period. The lake still casts up pieces of asphalt when the environs of the Dead sea are visited by earthquake.

Its proportion of saline matter is so great that it contains more than eight times as much as the ocean, and, while it is exceedingly fetid, yet its water is as blue as that of the Mediterranean, and to the bathers it is very refreshing, and owing to its specific gravity it is difficult to sink. Nothing living exists within the waters of the Dead sea.—Buffalo Express.

JOHN STOWE'S REWARD.

The Beggar Historian Got Royal Permission to Solicit Alms.

James I. on March 8, 1603, granted letters patent under the great seal to John Stowe, London's great historian, authorizing him to beg. The letters patent of James I. authorized Stowe to collect the voluntary contributions of the people. The letter recites that:

"Whereas, Our loving subject, John Stowe, a very aged and worthy member of our city of London, this five and forty years hath to his great charge and with neglect of his ordinary means of maintenance, for the general good as well of posterity as of the present age, compiled and published diverse necessary books and chronicles, and therefore we, in recompense of his labors and for the encouragement to the like, have in our royal inclination been pleased to grant letters patent under our great seal of England, dated March 8, 1603, thereby authorizing him to collect among our loving subjects their voluntary contributions and kind gratuities."

John Stowe died on April 5, 1605, and was buried in the parish Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, where his monument, erected by his widow, is still to be seen.—London Stray Stories.

A Journalist Bought Suez.

The journalist is often the man behind the statesman, but he seldom gets the credit. Who was it that induced Mr. Disraeli to buy the Suez canal shares which have proved so abundantly good an investment, with dividends that are represented not only by money, though even from that point of view it is the best investment that a state has ever made? Fleet street knows and honors the name of Mr. Frederick Greenwood both for that reason and for many another. But how many outside the world of jour-

Discordant Thoughts.

In wandering through your mental pleasure grounds, whenever you come upon an ugly intruder of a thought which might bloom into some poisonous emotion, such as fear, envy, hate, worry, remorse, anger and the like, there is only one right way to treat it, writes Robert H. Schaffner in the Atlantic. Pull it up like a weed, drop it upon the rubbish heap as promptly as if it were a stinging nettle and let some harmonious thought grow in its place. There is no more reckless consumer of all kinds of exuberance than the discordant thought, and weeding it out saves such an astonishing amount of eau de vie wherewith to water the garden of joy that with it in hand every man may be his own Burbank.

How well do I recall the day
When I was but a lad,
How very proudly I surveyed
The first boots that I had!

Your Congressman's Politics

Of course you know it, but do you know the politics of every other congressman in Ohio? Of every state senator and representative? Do you even know the names of them all? Isn't it possible that the information might be useful to you some day? And don't you think you'd like to know anyway? Or at least be able to look it up easily if you wanted to?

It takes less than one minute to find those names and the districts, and the party to which the men belong, in our 1914 OHIO ALMANAC, just issued.

And if you are not interested in the people who represent you and make most of the laws that govern you, there are 100,000 other facts that you WILL be interested in to be found in this splendid HANDBOOK, and all found with equal facility. There is not another book published which provides such source of information for you. If you don't own an Ohio Almanac you will have to go to the complicated original sources to find those things, just as we did to compile this book for you.
